

Donate your old bits of wool for the Winter Woollies Project at WHAP

Late Bernard de Winter of RCPE started this knitting project at Winterveldt with left over wool gathered from individuals at his retirement village. The idea was to get the Gogos, who come to WHAP every Wednesday for exercising and fellowship, to knit scarves and beanies. These would be sold locally to provide money for themselves and WHAP.

Often these grannies also look after their grandchildren who they bring with them. But the Gogos soon get busy knitting on site while enjoying the afternoon sun.

Bernard had the advantage of being in a retirement village where people do lot of knitting, but now, Clive has taken over the project and he does not have access to such a resource. We therefore need donations of excess wool or wool leftovers for the Gogos. So, if you have access to a place or people, possibly they can help. Since wool is very expensive, we would greatly appreciate your donations.

Another Project is to collect warm clothes for WHAP which they sell to finance their fine work looking after their patients. Winter has arrived and they all need to keep warm. So, don't let your old cloths keep your cupboard warm, let's rather keep the needy warm. Several Rotarians have already donated to this worthwhile effort.
